3 Ideas to Reduce Costs and Increase Productivity

In tough economic times, business owners are forced to take drastic measures to protect their company's future. I would like to suggest a few ideas to assist you in reducing your IT budget and increasing employee productivity.

- Setup a maintenance plan for your IT equipment
Most large IT expenses happen during technical emergencies. Not only the cost of replacing equipment on short notice, but wasted money with staff downtime. If your employees aren't working, you aren't making money. Regular checkups of your computer equipment and replacing outdated systems may seem like an added cost now but it will reduce costs in the long run.

- Reduce IT costs
- Work from anywhere
- Fastest response time
- Monitored

Run your server from our datacenter starting at $200 / month.

- Go Dual LCDs

According to the New York Times “Survey after survey shows that whether you measure your productivity in facts researched, alien spaceships vaporized, or articles written, adding an extra monitor will give your output a considerable boost — 20 percent to 30 percent, according to a survey by Jon Peddie Research.” Wouldn’t you love a staff that was 20 to 30 percent more productive?

- Colocate your server

Housing your server at our datacenter has many benefits:

1. Save money on your electricity bill by having 1 less computer running 24/7.
2. Connect to your server from home exactly as if you were at your office.
3. Fastest response time available. When you have a problem with your server, it is already at our office, 20ft away from the technicians you would call anyway.
